Analysis

Amidst the continued risk of global volatility, the market continues to response the FOMC's result by the Fed in May 2024 which maintains its interest rates at the level of 5.25-5.50%. At the meeting, Jerome Powell stated that the Fed's current monetary policy is quietly restrictive and indicated no further rate hikes for this year. Nevertheless, the Fed continues to monitor economic developments, especially labour and inflation. Powell's statement was in line with the release of US inflation and PCE data which showed lower number of 3.4% YoY and 2.7% YoY, respectively.
